Simon Holden Racing Club By Simon Holden

What an exciting Saturday we have today with the first really good jumps meeting of the season at Chepstow complimented by two superb cards at Newmarket and York who stages its final race day of the season. Now I still look very young as you know but I find myself saying these old people sayings like ‘Where has the year gone’ and ‘she is not going out dressed like that’ and that’s my Mum.

But as we reach the end of the Flat season I’m ready to attack the jumps and I’ve assembled the biggest team of inside contacts I’ve ever had so if you join the Simon Holden Racing Club for the season we will pile on the agony for the old enemy.

Lets have a look at the big handicap hurdle at Chepstow at 4.10, it’s a class 1 handicap hurdle over 2 and a half miles and it’s a pearler. The first thing to say is the vast majority of the field are having their first run of the season so we have to take on trust their fitness. Or we have to look at the current form of their Trainers. Some yards are slow to come to hand and others have their horses ready to rumble.

The wily Jonjo O'Neil has his team in really good form and paddock pickers report them all to be very fit. He runs a horse here who I saw win last year and who started the season with victories before tailing off. This is a horse clearly best caught early and if it's as fit as the stables other runners then it's on a mark to do some damage here. Also because of the tail off in its form last year it comes here completely unfancied and is a whopping 40/1 with William Hill. The horse is Doesyourdogbite and is ridden by Aiden Coleman who rides Chepstow as well as anyone. Jonjo likes nothing better than a big priced tilt at these big handicaps and if this one is in the same form he was early last season we have a real player.

I have 4 other big gambles going down today and there is still time to get involved and start your membership to my Racing Club.

John Constable Can Win The Cesarewitch By Rick Elliott

In a race over two miles two furlongs you would think the draw is not a factor. However, 13 of the last 17 winners of Saturday's Cesarewitch at Newmarket came from stall 18 or lower. The inside stalls give horses an advantage and John Constable has fared well in that respect. The ante post favourite has seen money after being drawn in seven in a field of 34 runners. Leading contender Withhold is in stall 24 and has drifted on the basis of the low draw advantage.

John Constable was the early betting favourite on the strength of some decent form over jumps. The horse was impressive in winning the Swinton Hurdle at Haydock in May. The favourite is trained by Evan Williams who is better known for his jumpers but since the start of the century Martin Pipe, Nicky Henderson and Philip Hobbs have won two Cesarewitch's each. Alan King trained the winner in 2015.

Dubawi Fifth has not been given a kind draw and at number 19 has to defy the historical trends. However, the horse has been allocated a relatively low weight and is a proven stayer. Dubawi Fifth could improve and ticks all the right boxes for the Cesarewitch. The horse looks a jumper in the making and Cheltenham could be the next port of call after this assignment at Flat HQ.

The each-way value could be Shrewd who gets in with 7lbs less than last year. There has been a dip in form but the horse could have found a competitive level and weight. The draw and ground are positives and Shrewd could make the payout places. Some firms are settling each-way bets down to eighth place at one fifth the odds so Shrewd could be a winner with them although a top 4 place is a big ask.

The last major handicap on the Flat is becoming the first key contest of the new jumps season. Since 2000 eight predominantly National Hunt trainers have won the race which begins in one county and ends in another. It's rare that a race over 18 furlongs does not take the runners past the winning post more than once. John Constable can good a good position and dictate the race and the horse is 8/1 in open betting.

Jumps form does not always translate to the Flat and vice versa. Even over this extended trip both speed and stamina are important and John Constable may struggle to keep up when there is not the equalising element of 8 jumping tests. However, the horse has been so impressive in two valuable handicap hurdles that the value of the form cannot be ignored. JOHN CONSTABLE is tipped to win the 2018 Cesarewitch.

The Dewhurst Stakes is the most prestigious race for horses aged two in Britain. It is a Group 1 contest run over seven furlongs and is part of the supporting card on Cesarewitch day. The winner often becomes the winter favourite for the 2,000 Guineas and last year's winner Churchill won both races as did Frankel (2010) and Dawn Approach (2012). Expert Eye is the odds-on favourite and is the form and ratings pick even though Aidan O'Brien has four entries for a race he has won three times. EXPERT EYE will be a tough nut to crack even for the top trainer.

United Win And BTTS At Anfield Today By Rick Elliott

One of the most popular sports bets is a multiple on matches in the Premier League and today there is a standout treble in the 3pm kick-offs. The fixture between Liverpool and Manchester United could break the record for TV viewers for a domestic match. It brings together two teams with massive following around the world, the vast majority of which have never been to Anfield or Old Trafford. A United win and both teams to score is 4/1 with Ladbrokes.

Once the dust has settled on the 12.30 match we can focus on fixture starting at the traditional time of which there are five in the Premier League. The two absolute bankers are Manchester City at home to Stoke and Tottenham at home to Bournemouth. Opposing the two good things would be churlish but now we must find a third team for the bet. Swansea look overpriced at odds against versus Huddersfield and the treble pays almost 2/1 with bet365.

The highlight of the day in racing is the Cesarewitch which starts in one county and ends in another at Newmarket. National Hunt trainers have won the race eight times this century and Evan Williams can improve that record by training JOHN CONSTABLE to victory. Expert Eye cannot be opposed in the Dewhurst Stakes, which is the most prestigious race for horses aged two in the calendar.

There is almost one million pounds of prize money on offer at Newmarket today and Aidan O'Brien has brought a strong team from Ireland. His horses named with a flower theme have done well this season so it's appropriate that his best chance could be with Kew Gardens in the first race which is a juvenile contest. There are concerns about trip and going for some of the other runners and KEW GARDENS (7/4 with William Hill) has the form to take advantage and win the race under Ryan Moore.

Declan's Eye-Catchers By Declan O'Donoghue

CHILDRENS LIST (Willie Mullins) Ran a cracker on his first race since New Year's Eve when a close second from way off the pace over a trip too short at Limerick. Has plenty of scope and will make a decent - and potentially top class - three mile chaser.

DETAILED (Joseph O'Brien) Rapidly improving filly, showed good battling qualities to land a Listed race at Limerick, and should continue to climb the ratings. Stays longer than the mother in law but not short of toe either.

DROMNEA (Mouse Morris) Ran well in the Munster National but the trip proved a bridge too far. Compensation awaits if stepping down in distance next time.

FAYONAGH (Gordon Elliott) Beat the boys in the Champion Bumpers last season at Cheltenham and Punchestown. May be confined to her own sex this year as the Mares Novice seems the long term target. Made the perfect start over hurdles at Fairyhouse though and the Supreme Novices could be tempting if she continues to progress.

GOBI DESERT (Ger Lyons) Lit up a gloomy Navan last Sunday when flying home to grab the Legacy Stakes. Colin Keane reported him still very green, hating the soft ground and finding the six furlongs plenty sharp enough. Should really take off over a mile on decent ground, and could develop into a 2,000 Guineas horse next year.

HAUNTING VOCALS (Jim Bolger) Front running tactics brought notable improvement as she landed some nice bets in a Gowran Park nursery. Should comfortably get a mile and once Bolger's handicappers start winning they often run up a sequence.

IMAGING (Dermot Weld) While his trainer won't remember this season with any particular affection, this Oasis Dream colt gave him something to smile about when trouncing the highly regarded Ballydoyle juvenile Spanish Point at Limerick. He'll reappear in a 2,000 Guineas Trial early next season and really could be anything.

PALMERS HILL (Jonjo O'Neill) Impressive Tyrella point to point winner, sent to the Cheltenham Sales held at the Festival after racing on the Thursday, snapped up by J P McManus for £310,000. Nice start at Uttoxeter, travelled and jumped well.

ROBIN DES FORET (Willie Mullins) Not the main stable fancy when winning at Limerick, this consistent sort has now shown that he handles sticky ground which opens up all kinds of new options. Stays well, and seems to settle more easily now.
