Manchester United Are Tipped To Win The FA Cup - By

Ian Hudson

The cream usually rises to the top in the FA Cup and Saturday's final brings together the teams that finished second and fifth in the Premier League. The higher placed team usually prevails which means Manchester United should beat Chelsea at Wembley Stadium. Statistically there should be two or three goals so correct score punters should consider 2-1 for United after 90 minutes. Since 1992/93 there have been more goals in the second half than first half more often than not.

The average finishing position in the league of the Cup winners during the Premier League era is 4th. The average finishing position of the losing finalists is seventh so those averages will be improved on if United beat Chelsea. On current form they are the most likely winners and Jose Mourinho understands the value of winning trophies. In his first full season in charge at Old Trafford United won the League Cup and Europa League so three titles in two years would not be a disaster.

However, Mourinho was recruited to make United competitive in the Premier League and Champions League. His team were always going to be way off the pace behind Manchester City but United were best of the rest and won more games and points than last season. Winning the FA Cup would keep the momentum going but sooner or later Mourinho must deliver one of the two trophies that matter most. The nature of the loss to Sevilla in the last 16 of the Champions League was disappointing. United gave away the initiative in the second leg at Old Trafford and elimination was not a shock.

Chelsea maintained the pattern of winning the Premier League and then underperforming the following season. Even though they were still in running for a top four finish on the final day Liverpool never looked like slipping up against Brighton and Chelsea were abysmal in the must win fixture against Newcastle. Antonio Conte's days look numbered so his players may not respond to his plans for the Cup Final. Winning the Cup may not save Conte and another managerial change looks imminent at Chelsea.

United have qualified for the Champions League and Chelsea will be playing in the Europa League because they finished fifth. The winners of the FA Cup qualify for the Europa League but that is not an issue for the two finalists. The momentum is with United and Chelsea didn't look interested at Newcastle. Its up to Conte to motivate the players but if they know he is through the door that could be difficult. United beat Chelsea 4-0 in the Cup Final in 1994 when Eric Cantona converted two identical penalties and Mark Hughes and Brian McClair completed the scoring.

Chelsea won the FA Cup four times in six years from 2007 to 2012, including a 1-0 win over United in the first year of that spell. Manchester United won the FA Cup two years ago to break Arsenal's run that has brought them three Cup Final wins over the last four years. Chelsea were the losing finalists last May and are predicted to be so again on Saturday because United are expected to be running around Wembley with the trophy. Another defeat could be the end of the line for Conte but Mourinho will maintain his record of winning all types of trophies for fun.

Can England Win The World Cup?

England are playing Tunisia in their first match in the World Cup and this is an opportunity to score some goals and hit the ground running. In the past with relatively weak opponents in the first match England have stumbled to a narrow win or draw. The tone is then set and when there are tougher matches the team fall short. The manager justifies a poor performance in the opening fixture by saying the team did not lose.

Surely, with Tunisia and Panama to deal with it's a chance to make a statement. Score some goals, get the country behind the team and move on. Typically, the group phase is like extracting teeth and as soon as England play anyone decent it all goes wrong. There are no expectations this time and ENGLAND are 18/1 with bet365 to win the 2018 World Cup.

Thursday used to be Europa League night but the final of this year's competition was last night when Atletico Madrid won the trophy for the third time. That leaves the FA Cup and Champions League finals before the focus turns to the World Cup. At least you can bet on the League 2 playoff semi-final second leg between Exeter and Lincoln. Exeter were unbeaten in their last 15 home matches and secured a draw in the first match. Any kind of win will see them progress to the final and EXETER are the team to back to win the match in 90 minutes at 9/5 with Coral.

The Dante Stakes at York is now established as one of the most significant trials for the Derby. An impressive winner of the race often becomes the favourite for the most prestigious Flat race in the world. That will be almost impossible this year because Saxon Warrior looks home and hosed and connections are talking about the Triple Crown. Nijinsky in 1970 was the last horse to win the Guineas, Derby and St Leger in the same season and Saxon Warrior has the attributes to emulate that horse. ROARING LION has been slightly disappointing this season but can get back into the Derby picture by winning the Dante today at 5/2 with Ladbrokes.
