Tabarrak Is The Nap At Haydock On Saturday - By Ian

Hudson

The domestic football season is over and the World Cup has not begun so Haydock should be packed to the rafters on Saturday. The course is ideally placed for the football mad cities of Liverpool and Manchester so with no meaningful fixtures at the weekend the crowd should be boosted at the track which has excellent transport links to those two major conurbations. Tabarrak is the horse to back in the John Of Gaunt Stakes which is the feature race on the Haydock card.

The race is run over seven furlongs and is one of the two Group 3 contests at the fixture. The other main race is the Pinnacle Stakes for fillies and mares and the distance is 12 furlongs which is almost one lap at Haydock. God Given is the best horse in the race based on form and Racing Post Ratings and is a worthy favourite. Tabarrak is the favourite with some bookmakers for the John Of Gaunt Stakes and the double on the two market leaders prevailing pays over 10/1.

Haydock attracts plenty of runners from the south and is one of the best dual purpose tracks in the country. It is one of the few courses that stages a Group 1 race on the Flat and a Grade 1 race over jumps. It is easy to get from the motorway network and that enhances the overall quality of the runners. Tabarrak is trained by Richard Hannon and God Given is trained by Luca Cumani and they are both based in the south. Derby winning trainer Charlie Appleby has potential runners and his base is in Newmarket.

Tabarrak is the favourite for a decent race and several horses have strong claims. Emmaus will have plenty of backers after impressive wins at Listed level. The horse won three races at Leicester over seven furlongs when coming off the pace. Emmaus is progressive but unproven at Group level and the horse could get found out in better company. Tabarrak can handle the quality of the opposition and is preferred. The selection's win on the track stacks up well and is the best form on offer.

Tabarrak is owned by Hamdan Al Maktoum and he has several potential good things on Saturday. Muthmir is the horse to back in the Achilles Stakes at Haydock because he has been given a good opportunity on the basis of past form. The horse has won three races at Group 2 level but has struggled recently in Group races. The drop in class will take Muthmir back into his comfort zone and a win is predicted. The horse has a few near misses in better races so it could all come right at Haydock this weekend in one of three Listed races. There are also five handicaps at the meeting.

At the time of writing Mark Johnston has five entries in the one mile and four furlongs handicap that is the first race. Silvestre de Sousa's name appears alongside the five horses so presumably only one will run or other jockeys are required. On ratings Baghdad is the best of the Johnston runners but Sharja Silk for Roger Varian is a much bigger price having shown a similar level of form and offers the value. Istanbul Sultan has something to find but could be the most progressive runner.

The Sprint Handicap at 5.10 could have a maximum field of 17 runners which means each-way bets will be settled at one quarter the odds for four places. Royal Residence was second over the course and distance in his first handicap last month. The horse was unlucky in running but finished well ahead of the rest of the field so can go one better at Haydock on Saturday.

Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

Rashford Must Start Against Tunisia

Before last night's friendly against Costa Rica the bookmaker odds for the players to start the match against Tunisia suggested 11 names were set in stone. There will have to be some adjustments now because Marcus Rashford can't be left out for England's first match in the World Cup. Glenn Hoddle named him as the man of the match and he's not a bad judge. All the pundits now believe Rashford starts against Tunisia.

The man on the street or in his favourite armchair could not have failed to be impressed. Rashford scored a brilliant goal and produced an excellent performance which Gareth Southgate cannot ignore. Harry Kane is a certainty to play up front and his partner must be RASHFORD who you can back at 150/1 with Ladbrokes to win the Golden Boot awarded to the leading scorer in the World Cup in Russia.

Rafael Nadal has played 86 matches in the French Open and won 84 but he is too short to win the 87th. The King of Clay meets Juan Martin Del Potro in the semi-finals today and the outsider could win the match. It's a meeting between players from Spain and Argentina, two nations who have won the football World Cup and are genuine contenders this time. Not many players can get Nadal out of his comfort zone on clay but DEL POTRO has won five of their 14 matches on all surfaces so cannot be ignored at 5/1 with William Hill to beat him in Paris today.

There are eight meetings in Britain and Ireland today but only the Flat fixture at the Curragh offers more than £87,000 in prize money. In fact there is over two hundred grand in euro up for grabs at one of the most lucrative evening fixtures of the season. The highlight is the Group 3 Ballyogan Stakes over six furlongs at 7.45pm. On form and ratings ONE MASTER is the bet at 2/1 with Betfair.

A Not So Shaggy Dog Tale - By Bet World Reviews

Last time I mentioned the successful review of The Judge's greyhound tipping service and he has continued to bring home the winners since then. He has more than doubled the bank since I started the review and as he has been around for many years this is unlikely to be a flash in the pan.

Even better I have managed to negotiate a special deal for readers with the first month's subscription at just £4.97 instead of £48 – that's a saving of £43.03.

You will find out how everything works and could even win enough to cover the ongoing subs.

PREFER THE HORSES? No PROBLEM and MINIMAL RISK

A couple of months back I highlighted the latest offering from matched betting supremo Mike Cruikshank. Called Advantage Play Secrets it is a package of 4 strategies aimed at profiting from back betting on horses. Mike recommends that you master the Golden Parachute strategy first before moving on to the others and so I have tested that element initially.

Risking no more than £3 per race I have managed a profit in excess of 600 points and with minimal time required to achieve this. You need to be able to bet with bookmakers at BOG prices to operate this method.

I have completed the initial review here and am pleased to report that the initial offer of £1 for 14 days is still available to Betfan members. This is more than enough time to test things out for yourself without any risk whatsoever.

WHO IS JOHN KINANE?

On Monday I received an email from one John Kinane advising that I should back a certain horse which was going to win. It duly did following which despite not having replied to the initial email I received a follow up asking if I should like more similar information from them. (I am not aware that I ever asked for information from this source so assume he has bought an email list – a practice which should now be ceasing in the light of the GDPR regulations.)

My initial reaction was that this is likely to be a version of the multi winner scam where the email list is divided into several sections with each advised of different horses all but ensuring some will get the race winner. These people are then targeted with further offers of information at a price but of course it will be pot luck if you get further winners.

If any readers have received emails from this source recently would they please forward a copy to me at peter@betworldreviews.com so I can see what may be happening here.

A GREAT LOSS

I cannot end without mentioning the passing this week of the great steeplechaser Denman. A true champion who brought joy to many and will doubtless be missed. Condolences to his connections.

In the meantime the reviews continue and you can see the latest services to go under the microscope here.
