Howard's Eye-Catchers & Racing Hottie - By Howard Davis

Well another record in the bag for Aidan O'Brien with Saxon Warrior winning the Racing Post Trophy giving him his 26th group one success of the year. You have to say Aidan is a genius however I truly believe that Roaring Lion was a very unlucky loser as he got buffeted by the strong wind and if he had delayed his challenge a little longer the Irish colt would not have been able to get back up. I actually think that Roaring Lion has strong claims for next years 2,000gns.

I was also a little gutted as I had Roaring Lion in a double with a 25/1 winner Meadowcroft Boy who I put up as a tip on both Betting Opportunity and Fold4Gold.

This brings me onto an important point as too many people keep looking for new tipsters when really they would be far better off sticking with tried and tested services who have performed well over time.

My two services are possibly the longest that have been with BetFan and both are showing profits in excess of a 1000 points each. Yes of course they have losing months but it's only long term profits that count. It's just a shame not enough punters realise this as all they want is immediate gratification.

Howie's Hottie this week is Top Diktat from Gary Moores yard who runs in the 4:00 Nottingham. The old boy is not as good as he once was but he did win this race two years ago off a much higher rating.

EYE-CATCHERS

FLAT

Naadirr trainer K.Ryan - Ran well at Doncaster staying on an is on a competitive mark.

Als Memory trainer D.Evans - Another who has dropped in the weights and is in good form.

JUMPS

Meadowcroft Boy trainer A.Whillams - This the horse I tipped up at 25/1 who romped home at Kelso on Saturday. He is on a much reduced rating these days and could well go in again but you won't get big odds next time.

Traffic Fluide trainer G.Moore - Ran well at Aintree first time out this season and will be fitter next time.

Tottenham To Draw Against Real Madrid Tonight - By Rick Elliott

Real Madrid have not lost any of their last 14 away group stage matches in the Champions League and they can extend that record tonight at Wembley. The champions of Spain meet Tottenham in the reverse fixture after a 1-1 draw in Madrid two weeks ago. Harry Kane trained yesterday and might start but even with their leading scorer in the starting 11 Tottenham have a tough assignment in trying to win this match.

The London club were impressive on the break in the away leg. In fact Spurs had chances to win the match but Real should not be caught on the hop at the National Stadium tonight. The visitors have won nine of their last ten away matches in all competitions while Tottenham have won their last two matches at Wembley. The curse of relocating to the stadium is a thing of the past but tonight a DRAW is the most likely outcome which can be backed at 11/4 with William Hill.

If its goals you want you should take yourself to Naples tonight or tune in to BT Sport. Manchester City's last 11 Champions League fixtures have produced 43 goals and that average can be maintained in their fixture away at Naples tonight. City are scoring goals for fun and 82% of the host's matches this season have seen more than two goals. In fact Napoli have won matches in which both teams have scored in more than half of their fixtures.

City need just one point to qualify for the knockout stages but it is not in their mentality to 'park the bus'. If they concede two they can score three and that approach can bring its rewards in Italy this evening. Napoli are desperate for a win and have lost just two of their last 23 home ties in Europe. In pushing on they will be vulnerable to counter attacks so a City win and more than three goals is the standout bet at 4/1 with Ladbrokes.

Liverpool beat Maribor 7-0 in the reverse tie so the crowd at Anfield tonight will be expecting goals. However, the home team's record of winning matches in which both teams score is poor. If Liverpool let one in they will struggle to score twice to clinch the points. Both teams have scored in seven of their last 20 fixtures in total. Liverpool should win this match but a win without conceding is the call at 1/2 with Sun Bets.
