Starting With A Small Bank And Growing It - By Eddie Lloyd

For those of you that follow my weekly ramblings, you'll know that I'm a big fan of patience and discipline.

These two virtues need to be applied to our money management that I keep banging on about and needs to be enforced from the outset. One way we can instil this within ourselves is to save up for our betting bank.

A friend of mine actually gave up betting and quit for a whole year while he saved up and worked on his portfolio. He's now one of the most successful bettors out there. By showing you have the discipline to save money, not spend it and build up a bank will hold you in good stead for when you do go eventually live. It also means that once the bank is in place it won't affect your monthly income. This in itself is also paramount to your success. One of the many pitfalls of betting is that people mix it with their monthly income and this adds more pressure. By having a separate bank you release the pressure of not having it attached to your current outgoings etc. By viewing that bank as a long-term investment and with a view to releasing profits from your investment you'll be much better off.

Even if you don't have much money you could stick a tenner aside each month and after a year you would have £120. Following the advice in these articles and working out your stake size you would then be able to build that small bank up and by compounding the profits you'd be surprised at how it can build up.

Here's an example:

£120 invested -

Your approach/system/tipster shows a strike rate of 25% from the paper trading you've done. In working out your stake size we know that a 25% strike rate would result in up to 24 consecutive losers. We multiply this by three to protect the bank and divide this number into our £120. That's $24 \times 3 = 72$. Therefore £120 divided by 72 = £1.67 per bet.

After the first month, we've made 30 points profit. That's $30 \times £1.67 = £50.10 + £120 = £170.10$

We now compound this so take the £170.10 and divide by the 72 = £2.36 is our new stake size.

Realistically you will of course have losing months but let's assume that we average 30 points profit on winning months and lose 10 points on losing ones. We have 2 winning months followed by a losing month. Look at the compounded bank over the course of a year below:

Month 1 = £170.10

Month 2 = £240.90

Month 3 = £207.40

Month 4 = £293.80

Month 5 = £416.20

Month 6 = £358.40

Month 7 = £507.80

Month 8 = £719.30

Month 9 = £619.30

Month 10 = £877.30

Month 11 = £1242.70

Month 12 = £1070.10

I appreciate that is a fairly simple example and betting can be more volatile but it serves to illustrate how effective compounding your bank can be. That £120 has turned into just over a £1000 in a year which is incredible. Were you to carry on with that for the next couple of years you would be making 10's of thousands a year and all from £120.

Have a look into it and think about how you could grow your bank even further. Once you've found that reliable method and worked on your bank sizes etc you can look into compounding your betting and grow your bank even bigger.

If you like the idea of growing your bank in the way above you seriously need to check out the service below...

Trainers Under My Radar - By High Roller Racing

Last weeks article recommended three trainers to consider in the coming week ahead and they did not disappoint as John Gosden, Graeme McPherson and Paul Nicholls all weighed in with winners. Added to that my service High Roller Racing has a winning percentage of wins to tips of 80 per cent as I write. So obviously if you are looking for a regular supply of winning tips with no more than one tip per day this free to join service could help you... we are 45 points in profit for November as I write. Further information at end of this short article.

Three trainers have caught my eye over the last few days and it may be very prudent to consider their runner in the coming week or so. Who are they?

Fergal O'Brien is a most promising trainer. His stats prove he is a man to be reckoned with. He is in top form and has some very interesting runners in the coming days. Creevytenant won twice last season and ran well on his return over hurdles at Perth in September. He has an entry at Ludlow on Thursday and could go well from just 2lbs above his last winning mark. Fergal has had three Bumper winners in the past month and he is one to follow in these types of races. I think we underestimate Fergal and his horses at our peril. A stable going places and in very good form.

Alan King has his string in fine form at present and has numerous entries over the coming week so we should sit up and take notice of this stable. It could pay to look very carefully at some inmates I think will be winning sooner than later. Alan is not afraid to take on the horses with big reputations and I think he has horses to step up again this season but consider his horses carefully in the next week or so.

Tom Lacey is going along nicely and has had a very good last couple of months. Triopas showed improved form to get off the mark at Chepstow and Sword Of Fate should go well when reappearing soon after winning twice in October. Sir Egbert will be making his debut soon and looks an improver. Kateson and Colt Lightning are two names mentioned when I recently chatted to a stable spokesperson. Watch out for Tom and his runners.

So I hope these three trainers can provide you with winners in the coming week or so. I am pretty sure that High Roller can guide you to winners too... we've had 7 winners from the last 9 selections including a French horse at Auteuil backed from the recommended price of 11/10 into a price of 3/10 on... a tip heavily backed on a horse called De Bon Coeur... my members had this early on Saturday evening and got the 11/10 from Paddy Power or Betfair Sportsbook. On Friday they got On A Promise recommended at 5/2 and won at 10/11. We tip a maximum of one horse per day. Is your tipster giving you these type of winners or are they giving you a dozen selections hoping to get a big priced winner? Ireland Can Join The Party Tonight - By Rick Elliott

We know now it's going to be a World Cup without Italy and Holland and only England of the four home nations have qualified. The Republic of Ireland have a great chance of playing in Russia next summer and a win against Denmark in Dublin tonight will suffice. The playoffs have mainly produced tight matches so the most likely outcome of this fixture is a one-nil victory for the Irish.

Ireland have not conceded in four of their last five fixtures against Denmark and if that becomes five from six one goal will see them qualify for the World Cup for the first time since 2002. In fact Ireland have only appeared in three tournaments and their best effort was reaching the last eight at Italia 90. They are a difficult side to beat but REPUBLIC OF IRELAND can win this fixture at 2/1 with Ladbrokes.

It's rare that a match between England and Brazil gets second billing. However, the friendly at Wembley tonight will have no significance for the World Cup. On the face of it drawing with Germany seems a decent result but very few of the starters last Friday would be in the best 11 of either side. Brazil have lost just one of their last 16 matches so a diplomatic DRAW could be the best bet at 12/5 with Coral. Team selection will be key to the outcome of the Wales and Panama match so no bet.

Lingfield stages one of its rare jumps meetings today amongst the dross and sameness of countless All Weather fixtures. The highlight is a trappy handicap chase (2.50pm) in which De Faoithesdream could be a blot. The horse won off a higher weight in April 2016 and has shown glimpses of that form in defeat this season. Its got a difficult name to spell but persevere and put a win wager on DE FAOITHESDREAM on your betting slip at 7/1 with William Hill.

England are 20/1 to win the World Cup but at least they are there and Italy and Holland are not and the Republic of Ireland can also qualify tonight.

“Great analysis today I got on Quinteo at 100/1!” Al Murray

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

What can I say about the month so far? It's been a challenge our strike rate has been well below what we would expect less than 10% when on average since the beginning we typically operate at around 23%. Yet we are up around 40 points that's a 53% return on investment. This is because we have hit some huge winners Bollin Line won 50/1 into 20/1 REGULAR INCOME won 7/1, LUCARNO DANCER won 20/1 into 17/2 GOLAN FORTUNE won 16/1 into 6/1 as a huge gamble took place the horse made a mistake and our dough looked done around 3 out but the horse stuck on gamely to draw clear at the line. The horse came through connections that have provided some great past winners for us at really decent prices. FIRST EXCELL won another big gamble backed from 12/1 into 13/2. Some huge winners but far too many that have run very bad for my liking and that's just the way it is this time of year it usually takes a couple of months for the stride to be hit.

We are in a much better position than last year though this month. November 2016 we took a loss so overall I have to be pleased especially as the last two Decembers (2016 and 2015) we have broken the 100 points barrier in both. That's what makes it a really good time to join us now and be part of the many Christmas gambles our contacts have been planning all year.

The information is usually on point as they all want to fill their sacks for Christmas!

TODAY'S HORSES IN FOCUS

Not the greatest race day today as we have all jump meetings yet it's still better than the disappointing performance put on by Kempton yesterday with 2 races only having 2 runners and one race with 3. That is pretty terrible for the punter.

HUNTINGDON 1:10 - CANYON CITY would be the value call against the short priced favourite at 15/2 with bet365 yet it's hard to quantify what he beat last time. It very much looks like the top 3 in the market will be the 123 in this.

HUNTINGDON 1:40 - FIRMOUNT GENT should have the measure of these but 5/4 for a horse that fell last time may be a concern according to the speed figures 100/1 shot SOCIETY MAN yes I must be mad he is well out of the handicap and hasn't won over fences in 60 plus races but I think he can get a place he was running a decent race last time when unseating. He was keeping pace with a 133 rated horse and there is nothing close to that class here. I have had a nibble at 999/1 on the exchange but it's more of a fun bet out of curiosity that being said I will make a ton of money if he wins but I won't be out of pocket much if he doesn't and there could be an opportunity to cash out my stake during the race.

HUNTINGDON 2:10 - EAST INDIES looks a big price here at 20/1 I think the horse has improved this year and I think further progress will happen in time Granted the favourite should be the class act but I'm keen to see how the race plays out. SO CELEBRE should run well too.

HUNTINGDON 3:40 - SHAELLA 8/1 makes some appeal here despite being flat bred the horse has already shown something over this course and distance and being closely related to a group 3 winner I think the horse will progress this season. The price is big enough to chance and I hope for connections the horse runs a good race I know they think a great deal of her.

LINGFIELD 12:50 Stakes (Class 6) 16f - OGBORNE LADY 6/1 connections are backing this horse today! They are anticipating a winning start after the horse has been putting in some great work at home. They think she is well above this level and must be backed today. Only time will tell if the horse can show it on the track.

LINGFIELD 1:50 Handicap Chase (Class 4) 20f - GRAYED A can win this according to connections the horse has really come on at home since his first race this year and should take to the larger obstacles. I think this horse is one to keep an eye on as progress is expected to be ongoing all season but he should be above this grade 4/1 isn't much in the way of value on form but on what we have been told it could look very juicy.

We are going to finish our horses to follow list this week and we should have something for you for next week's column it has taken some time including a trip to France and 2 trips to Ireland. We have met the horses and seen some work it's now time to write up the findings and then we can get winning some of these bets.

This Weeks Golf Tournaments - By Bet Fairway

It's the big jamboree in Dubai on the Earth course a long and brutal test of golf fitting for such a big week. Tommy Fleetwood and Justin Rose with Tyrell Hatton coming up the rails could all win the big race to Dubai pot depending on how others do.

So it's one of those weeks where we have 2 stories going on the tournament itself and the season long championship. Nobody could deny Fleetwood in whats been a breakthrough year but Rose really has cemented himself as a top player narrowly missing out on the Masters. Rose would see this week as fitting compensation.

In the Tournament itself big hitting Thomas Pieters is the forgotten man but this track will suit and he can go very close. Injuries have hit him but he says his confidence is back and this time last year we were talking about him as a World Superstar. This is a long, long course and his power will be a massive advantage

DP World Tour Championships Starts Thursday - Each Way Thomas Pieters - 50/1 Coral 1/4 odds 5 places.
