Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

Newcastle Can Spoil Burnley's 2019 Record

Burnley are unbeaten in the Premier League this year which is a fine achievement for a club with a relatively small budget and wage bill for players. There is a correlation between how much a club pays its players and their finishing position in the league. Burnley are overachieving while Newcastle's position is too far down the table for their wealth. Match day income is much smaller at Turf Moor due to the lesser capacity of the ground and merchandising especially for replica shirts.

Newcastle are a richer club and that status can be confirmed with a win against Burnley at what used to be called St James's Park tonight. The home team had a comfortable win over Huddersfield four days ago. Burnley beat Tottenham at home on the same day but have conceded at least one goal in all but one of their last eight fixtures on the road. NEWCASTLE have fewer key injuries to deal with and are the bet at with 11/10 with Coral.

There are three other fixtures in the Premier League and in two of those the away teams are favourites. The odds suggest wins for Wolves at Huddersfield and Everton at Cardiff but Leicester should handle Brighton on their own patch. There is often a short term boost to performance and results when an unpopular manager is sacked. The departure of Claude Puel was inevitable and the team could play with more freedom. LEICESTER can beat an injury hit Brighton at 10/11 with Paddy Power.

If they weren't playing at home tonight the Leicester players could go to the races at their local track. A sports fan could take in both fixtures today and backing the winner in the handicap chase over two miles six and a half furlongs (4.00) could be the first leg of a double with a win for the football club. Midnight Mustang has won on the track but is now a veteran. The five years younger CRANBROOK CAUSEWAY has the best form from last autumn and is the selection at with 9/2 with Coral.

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

We've had a couple of decent winners in the last 2 days. Yet we are still not making any real gains this month. That's not too bad though considering we haven't lost either. In fact we are slightly up. Our year to date is still looking really healthy.

We have some strong bets today that hopefully will put the month right and deliver us a nice profit for our efforts. The weather and the loss of racing have both contributed to this. The weather over the next few weeks is going to be really confusing for nature especially the females who usually come in season around spring time. This spring weather we are having now may send some into season earlier than expected (we have had reports of this nature) but there is apparently more snow due and colder weather next week. That will really mess with their body clocks. It will certainly be risky backing fillies around this time.

Ok today we will give you a free tip. Please join our main service today for access to what I think could be a really good day for us.

Wolverhampton 5-00 Handicap (Class 6) 9f LORD COOPER has been bouncing at home for some time yet he's not quite shown the same form on the track. We were first alerted to him being 'ready to win' a few months ago and we have backed him. Connections have explained a few problems he faced and believe that it's just a case of nothing dropping right for him. They think he has a big chance tonight and rates a strong each way play!

Three More Trainers To Follow - By High Roller Racing

Amongst the trainers I considered last week Tom George had four winners with Neil Mulholland one winner. The third trainer, Charlie Longsdon, only had three runners throughout the week so it seems all is not well there.

This week I offer three more trainers to follow including Paul Nicholls, Mark Johnston and Anthony Honeyball. Nicholls seems to be in good form on a permanent basis with any lapses soon rectified. A week last Saturday Paul Nicholls had eight winners in one day... eight good winners too. Paul has lots of entries in the coming days and I trust too that he will turn out quite a few winners. Horses I like from the yard who have entries in the coming days are Not A Nail and Christopher Wood both of who can step forwards to the winners enclosure. Keep a watchful eye on the Team Nicholls entries then see where each entry is declared to run.

Mark Johnston a terrific trainer on the level both over turf and all weather is another trainer to follow. Mark has had 17 winners so far this year with eight of those coming in the last week as I write. The yard is flying and every declaration warrants respectful assessment of its chances. Mark seems to be able to snap his fingers and the horses return to form. Improvers in this yard that should be looked for are Pink Flamingo, Bay of Naples and Red Phoenix with Lord Lamington also able to step forwards soon. These horses are ready to win and should do soon... it may be this week!

Anthony Honeyball hasn't really had a great year so far but as the Spring approaches he usually comes to the forefront and starts producing winners galore. He normally does very well in bumper races and Lily The Pink and Marilyn Monroe have both caught my attention as winners waiting to happen. Hideaway Vic is rumoured with whispers from stable contact to be ready to win and he has entries this week. Watch for a resurgent turn in form from Team Honeyball.

High Roller has not been in form as far as results go this week with horses getting placed and placed but these spells happen and I have some good news for horses running this week. Don't give up on a service who won 49 points last month... if you miss a bet you will probably miss a winning bet. Following a winning service like mine doesn't have many losing spells but you need to stick with us whilst we find the winners again. Over a long term we will all win. Join us free now and let's make this week a winning one... join and get a maximum of one tip per day for which you pay just £10 when it wins.
