Champions League 20:00 - Borussia Dortmund/Real Madrid @ 2.02/1.66 double

Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

A Night Of Goals In The Champions League

Tottenham's season seems to be unraveling but a crisis will become a drama if they are knocked out of the Champions League tonight. They have a 3-0 lead over Borussia Dortmund heading into the second leg of the last 16 tie in Germany. It would be unthinkable if Borussia managed a turnaround but they have never come back from three-nil down in Europe. The stadium will be rocking if the hosts score early.

The home team have scored in 26 of their last 27 outings but that they have conceded in all but two of their last 12 matches. If Tottenham score an away goal Borussia need five to progress and they have conceded 13 times in six fixtures. The Bundesliga leaders will go for broke in the first half and that should create space for Kane so the bet is BOTH TEAMS TO SCORE at 1/2 with Ladbrokes.

Real Madrid have qualified for the quarter-finals of the Champions League for the last eight years. Things are going badly wrong in domestic football but with a 2-1 lead from the away leg Madrid should progress again at the expense of Ajax in the Spanish capital tonight. History is on the side of the home team because Ajax have won just two of their last 15 meetings with Spanish sides and lost all seven against Real.

Madrid have played three matches at home since the first leg in Amsterdam and suffered three defeats. They are too far off the pace in La Liga and Barcelona got rid of them in the Spanish Cup. Ajax are above average scorers in the Eredivisie and Champions League and can score tonight. An early goal for the visitors would put a cat among the pigeons and nicely set up OVER 3.5 GOALS at Evens with Coral.

The highest grade and most lucrative race today is the Class 3 novices' limited handicap chase over three miles and a bit and Exeter (4.15). Spring Wolf is a progressive horse but unproven over the distance while Garrane's best form is earlier in his career. THE OGLE GOGLE MAN goes well on the projected soft going and the distance won't be an issue so is the selection at 5/1 with Ladbrokes.

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

Cheltenham is really close now and we have already given 2 of our fancies. GETAWAY TRUMP - This horse is entered multiple times and will be hoping the ground will be soft. He ran his last prep race at Kelso. Reports are that he didn't get the pace he needed to show his best. He looks at his best coming off a break neck gallop and that's what he will surely get at Cheltenham.

HAZEL HILL won for us in good style he's from a trainer who has has a horse placed in the fox hunter and he believes this might be the best horse he has trained.

In the CHAMPION CHASE FOOTPAD 10/1 looks the sort of horse I would want to be with. He's improved every year and now at 7 he looks a strong bet at least each way with super short ALTIOR in the field. I can see this horse improving again for the festival and 10/1 represents great value for a horse proven here and won't mind if it's soft or good to soft.

Today's Free Tips

Exeter 5-15 Handicap Chase (Class 4) 19f - ZEN MASTER 15/2 widely available has the scores on the doors to win this race. He's at full match fitness and the handlers are confident today is the day.

Wolverhampton 6-30 Handicap (Class 6) 12f - CHANTRESSE 16/1 has been running pretty well of late and will like this track according to connections. The horse is a huge price but I think should be in the frame - solid each way chance I think it wise to cover an each way double for the chance of landing a huge one.

A Profit From Backing Horses - By High Roller Racing

A profit is what we are all looking for on our horse racing bets and by the way there are more opportunities nowadays than ever before for punters to take a profit from their betting.

A small profit is better than a huge loss in my opinion and it's our ability to win in the long run that determines whether we should be betting or not. If you are not making an annual profit from your betting then you should consider stopping... it's purely my opinion and I am sorry if you don't like my opinion.

Profit making bets which are favourites of mine are:-

1. WIN bets where your horse has to win to make a profit.
2. PLACE ONLY where you select a horse to finish placed and if the horse does get placed then you profit.
3. EACH WAY bets where you back a horse to win but by doubling the win stake you get a return if your horse is placed. You need five horses in a race to back each way where places are first and second. In races of eight to fifteen runners you can back each way for three places. In sixteen runner handicaps there are four places for each way punters. Those are the general rules but some bookmakers offer five places or better place terms to try and get you to bet with them... they want your business... unless you are winning.

4. EACH WAY EXTRA BETTING... some bookmakers now offer each way bets up to six places but they reduce the odds to do so. Example on Saturday was Agueroo at Chelmsford who was around 10/1 to win the race but Bet365 went 7/1 one fifth of the odds for SIX places and Agueroo finished sixth so making a small profit for his followers but normally an each way bet would be lost but this Each Way Extra is something I have been playing a lot... by the way there were only eleven runners in the Agueroo's race... a good bet.

5. MATCH BETS are where you back one horse against another in the race... the rest of the runners don't matter only yours and the one for the bookie... whichever one finishes in front of the other is the winner. When I first started betting the bookies would not even lay you a price on a two horse race and if they did take a bet in a match it was only settled at starting price.

Those my readers are my favourite bets which I continually look for.

Why not try my service High Roller Racing a proven service with a HIGH STRIKE RATE! Not a service that gives a 10/1 winner followed by nine losers. I get a lot of horses that are heavily gambled so you need to take my tips early and take the prices at best odds guaranteed before the price goes.

We have a maximum of one selection per day unlike other services who sometimes pick ten or more selections. When my selections win then I ask you to be fair with me and pay Betfan a small fee of £10. It would be great to see everyone who took the tip actually paid. So I hope you noted our winners this last week...

BAY OF NAPLES - WON 5/4
ARTHURS SECRET - WON 4/1
ORCHARDSTOWN CROSS - WON 7/4
STATIONMASTER - WON 5/4

Those four winners were from seven selections so a good strike rate of just over 57%.
