Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

If Leicester Can Win The Premier League at 5000/1.....

The DOUBLE on Liechtenstein to beat Italy and Malta to beat Spain in Euro 2020 qualifying pays 4488/1 with bet365. The odds are smaller than on Leicester to win the Premier League in 2015/16 so stranger things happen. Apparently there are no easy games in international football but these are for Italy and Spain. The fixtures represent the biggest disparity in FIFA rankings and both former world champions should win these matches without conceding a goal. Republic of Ireland's home match against Georgia is more difficult to call but the Irish should secure three points.

The international football standings are a good form guide. The rankings collate results in tournaments when results matter. Friendlies are used by managers to experiment but a team will play the best available starting 11 in the European Championships and World Cup, qualifying and finals. ROI have a ranking of 34 which puts them 57 places above Georgia. The nations have met nine times and Ireland have won eight of those fixtures and there has been one draw. Past results and current form suggest IRELAND are the team to back at 8/13 with Coral.

The racing in Britain features Class 4 and Class 5 contests over the jumps at Hereford and Hexham. There is also some ordinary racing at the evening meeting on the All Weather at Wolverhampton. The best race of the day is the chase over two miles and almost four furlongs at Clonmel (4.20). The race features two horses that have won races at the Cheltenham Festival in Arctic Fire and Yorkhill.

The latter lost his way over fences after winning one of the novice hurdle races at the Festival in 2016 and the JLT Novices' Chase the following year. However, that level of form makes the Willie Mullins trained runner well ahead on ratings despite some poor runs over the last two seasons. YORKHILL should be backed at the best price and with bookmakers that offer Best Odds Guaranteed.

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

Nice to report that we have a nice profit so far in March. It has still been a little up and down. We have made gains this week though with thanks to Vin D'honer 17/2 which was our big winner yesterday. We had to back the horse 3 times over the last few months. It just goes to show that the information on the horse being ready to win was correct. Sometimes a race just don't work out there are such small margins.

The Grand National

Well Tiger Roll is a very short price for the national! In fact I can't remember a year where the favourite was so far ahead of the rest and it's very difficult to see him being beaten. 9/2 best price for a national looks crazy but seriously is this horse the next Red Rum?

If looking down the list for a viable each way alternative I would suggest a small e/w play on 40/1 shot BLAKLION. The horse has got good form in the race and is now in the care of Phillip Kirby. He has had a great season but really needs a big winner like this to really put him on the training map. This would represent a great chance of making it happen.

FELIX MENDELSSOHN 8/1

The stable are just hitting top form and this horse has a great chance today. He comes out top of our ratings and looks to be running into some kind of form. I think he will be there about at the business end.

Three Trainers To Help Us Take Some Cash From The Bookies - By High Roller Racing

In a week where the racing has lost its sparkle after Cheltenham I think I have three trainers for us to follow to help us take some cash from the bookies. As normal I suggest you scrutinise the trainers entries and then the horses they run at declaration stage from their entries.

There is no trainer in the same form as George Baker on the flat at the moment. George has been in form for a while but is still worth looking at and has some interesting entries this week. Atomic Jack, Lamplighter and Confrerie all very worthy of consideration if running. On Wednesday George possibly runs The Gates of Dawn who could reappear and his current handicap mark of 81 could be lenient if producing his French form over here in Uk so have a look and make your mind up.

Over the jumps Emma Lavelle must still be waking tall after Paisley Parks victory in the Stayers Hurdle at Cheltenham. Emma has plenty of entries throughout the week and that's why we need to be focused on entries and declarations. Balibour is interesting at Market Rasen on Wednesday and should be competitive after a slightly poorer run when pulled up at Wincanton of late. Emma has many entries so keep your eyes focused on her movements and runners.

Brian Ellison hasn't been in that form we know he can produce but is showing signs of a resurgence so he is definitely under my radar to watch. Siannes Star and Snookered are two horses who could run for Brian this coming week and both could take a step forwards as they both showed a little more last time. Brian won with Bordeaux Bill at Sedgefield last week another sign showing his string is coming back to form.
