Mourinho Can Get The Better Of Wenger This Time - By Rick Elliott

Football is a multi-millionaire pound industry but bizarrely rewards failure with huge contracts. The cult of the football manager means Sam Allardyce and Alan Pardew can command huge wages and they have both got new jobs with Premier League clubs. Everton and West Brom respectively will now benefit from their experience but neither manager has come close to winning the Premier League or Champions League. Clubs facing the nightmare scenario of relegation to the Championship will hire managers who are more about style than substance.

Its an occupational hazard that a football manager will get sacked. Sir Alex Ferguson “carried his bat” to retirement but he was one of a kind. Arsene Wenger has used up most of his lives with Arsenal but he has now passed his 20 years of service. He will be in charge when Arsenal welcome Manchester United to the Emirates in the late live match on Saturday. Wenger and Jose Mourinho don’t get on and it will be a matter of pride to get one over the other. Mourinho could have the last laugh this time.

Arsenal and Wenger are weathering yet another storm this season. Social media pundits and fans on YouTube have been calling for the manager’s head for years now but Arsenal have turned a corner. Beating local rivals Tottenham can repair much damage but Arsenal have won five in six league matches and are now fourth. They have scored 28 goals in 14 matches and conceded 16. Only the two Manchester clubs have scored more goals but five teams have conceded fewer.

United have also won their last three league matches and are now firing on all cylinders. Paul Pombo was a huge miss but he is again dominating the midfield and Zlatan is back! Wayne Rooney is not being missed but anyway he's finished. Couldn't hit a barn door that guy. Terrible to see a strike in decline. Should make a dignified exit and move to China. Anyway one can hit a perfectly flighted half volley from halfway and make the current England goalie look stupid. Goal of the season?

United can beat Arsenal without Rooney and by then another United could be in trouble. Newcastle visit Chelsea for the early match on the back of four defeats in their last six matches and just one win. Manager Rafa Benitez knows the time of day but if the players are not good enough he can't produce miracles. There are stories about Mike Ashby selling the club and a new broom could have a positive affect. The man who made fortunes from selling training shoes knows the price of a deal. On the field things will get worse before better and that means losing at Chelsea.

West Ham are doing Newcastle a favour by occupying one of the relegation places. David Moyes has failed in his last three jobs but West Ham are paying him a fortune. The unhappy Hammers are hopeless and any team that can make Everton look good must be in trouble. Rooney's worldie apart West Ham were second best in every department when losing 4-0 at Everton this week. A match at Manchester City is hardly going to improve matters and City should win to nil on Sunday. A goal in the 95th minute secured maximum points against Southampton this week.

As local derbies go the south coast dust up between Bournemouth and Southampton is not a huge occasion in most parts of the world. However, it is one of the matches of the season for the locals and it will be a passionate affair on Sunday. Southampton are four places and two points ahead of their opponents in this match but Bournemouth can leapfrog them with a home win. Both clubs seem destined for mid-table safety, clear of relegation issues and not in contention for European qualification. Arsenal and Manchester United are competing for second place behind City.

Woods And Thistlecrack Are Back! - By Rick Elliott

You can either get up early or stay up late but sadly you won't be seeing Ben Stokes playing cricket for England in the 2nd Test against Australia. Regardless of the rights and wrongs a famous sportsman should not have been drinking in a bar at 2am. Apparently Bobby Moore loved a drink but always with discretion in mind and he never had to run the gauntlet of smartphones that basically makes ever Tom, Dick and Harry paparazzi. England are now embarking on a match they cannot afford to lose without their most influential player so AUSTRALIA are the bet at 4/6 with Betfair.

Tiger Woods is just three shots off the pace in the Hero World Challenge and the leader is someone my mate calls Tommy Southport from Fleetwood. The Southport lad couldn't get the job done at the Open at Royal Birkdale but he won the Race to Dubai. He is one of the most improved players from the upper echelons of world golf but Tiger also played well. His odds to win this week have been slashed from 40/1 to 25/1 with William Hill. Like a horse who has been absent the bounce factor could see WOODS struggle today but something very special may happen with a low round.

Thistlecrack is a very special horse back in action at Newbury today and live on ITV4. The facile winner of the King George last year missed the Cheltenham Gold Cup due to injury. The horse resumes his career over hurdles on the first day of Newbury's Winter Carnival which is in fact the Hennessy meeting in another guise. The race is still one of the biggest staying chases of the season but Thistlecrack runs over hurdles. The horse carries six pounds less than Unowhatimeanharry in the Long Distance Hurdle (3pm) which makes THISTLECRACK the banker bet at 10/11 with Ladbrokes.

The highlight of the football programme is the Championship fixture between Leeds and Aston Villa in Yorkshire. The visitors have played four teams in the top eight and not won any of the fixtures. It will have to be a cracker to steal the limelight from a returning golfer and horse.

The Quality Racing Specialist was in cracking form yesterday. There have been no bets this week from Monday to Wednesday, but on Thursday morning Jeff advised two bets on Bastien 5/1 and Perfect Pirate at 7/2.

One punter backed them both in singles, but also had an each way double and won over £3k!

If you're looking for bets everyday, this is not the service for you, but if you want quality winners - then be quick - not many places remain!
