ADVANCE RATINGS - FREE TRIAL DAY 2 of 7.

Well, what a good start to the BetFan exclusive free trial of Advance Ratings. There were only 2 meetings yesterday and, from the 14 races, one of the top rated horses was a non runner. From the remaining 13 races, 6 were won by the top rated horse.

This equates to a strike rate of 46.15%. To ISP, 14.833 points were returned to 13 points staked. This equates to a POI (profit on investment/stakes) of 14.10%. To BSP, 17.261 points (after a 5% commission was deducted) were returned to 13 points staked. This equates to a POI (profit on investment/stakes) of 32.78%.

Bookies Galore! - By Eddie Lloyd

With the era of online comparison sites, as a consumer, we're spoilt for choice when it comes to finding the best price for our purchases. Last year, shoppers spent over 133 billion quid on their online shopping. That figure is set to rise by over 16%, this year. That's a LOT of money being spent online.

But what of the online gambling industry?

A report issued by the Gambling Commission, this year states -

"New research shows almost half of people in Britain gamble"

That 50% of the population generated over 4.5 billion pounds in online betting. Of the £4.5 billion generated online £2.6 billion came from casino games, £1.6 billion from betting, £152 million from betting exchanges, £153 million from bingo and £26 million from pool betting. Online slot machine-style games alone generated £1.8 billion.

Wow!

Having been brought up and educated in the industry, where shops and on-course wagers were the only way to get your money down, the online betting industry has increased exponentially and, as a result, shops and on-course betting is a dying trade. At Cheltenham, earlier this year, I was with a group of about 12 lads and every one of them placed their bets on their phone. I, personally think it's a shame. There's something special about counting those crisp notes and collecting your winnings in cash. Having said that, even £5 and £10 notes are bloody plastic now!

The online betting industry is growing every year and by the time the next generation comes along, it will be the only way to get your money down.

That said, as with price comparison sites, for everything from insurances to holidays, it's vital that we get the best price for our bets.

Why would you stick to one bookie who offers you 8/1 about your nag, when another is offering 10/1?

It's vital that you shop around and open as many accounts as you can. That way, you can get the best price you can and by betting with different bookies, you'll increase your chance of keeping your accounts open, if even remotely successful!

You can view the best of the online bookies by clicking the link below...

Terms And Tack Used In Horse Racing - By High Roller Racing

I am uncertain how many of you understand some of the tack used by some of our Trainers and Jockeys. So I thought it might be of interest for those not knowing to briefly check matters out. After all some of the tack used has to be declared or it will not be able to be used. I have had horses running where the trainer forgot to declare a visor so we were not allowed to put it on the horse for the race.

Every racehorse wears a Bridle... this is leather made headpiece that holds the bit in place to steer and guide the horse where the jockey would like it to go.

Some horses wear cheekpieces, sometimes known as French Blinkers these are used to encourage the horse to look forwards and not look sideways.

Normal blinkers are also used to encourage a horse to look forwards and not be put off by horses ranging alongside. Blinkers can encourage a horse in a tight finish to a race.

Visors are another piece of headgear that is sometimes used to assist the horse in looking forwards but the visor allows a little more side vision than blinkers.

Some horses get disturbed entering the stalls. A double blanketed cover that fits behind the saddle and covers the hips for stalls entry and horse doesn't get knocked entering the stalls. It helps sometimes nervous horses. There is a ring and short rope near back of rug to allow it to fall off easily when horse leaves the stalls. This blanket is normally known as a Monty Roberts Rug/Blanket.

Hoods are also used on horses to allow them to concentrate and reduces noise levels that upset some horses. Aidan O'Brien is using visors and hoods more nowadays.

Tongue ties are sometimes worn to prevent a horse from getting their tongue over the top of the metal bit which would create steering problems for the jockey.

I do hope the information is of interest and you can see in declarations the abbreviations for things like horse wearing visor, tongue tie, blinkers etc. When making selections the tack being worn should be considered as most items have to be declared when the horse is declared to run.

My service High Roller Racing is shown a profit of 25 points in December as I write. You can join the service free of charge and you only pay for winning tips... currently £10 per winner and there has been plenty with a strike rate in December of approximately 60 per cent... that follows our 68 per cent strike rate for the month of November. If you want winners with a high strike rate then High Roller is a must. Join free by following the link below.

Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

It can be quite cold in Huddersfield at the height of the summer. So in the coldest snap for years you can only imagine how it will feel being outdoors tonight when Chelsea are in town for a Premier League fixture. It's the southern softies from the capital playing up north but in reality the visitors from London can go against the stereotypical grain. Huddersfield are hardly a side full of Yorkshire bred footballers which means the namby pamby side from the south can win this match tonight.

In freezing temperatures or pleasant weather the fact of the matter is that Huddersfield have only scored in seven of their last 16 matches. Those goals have earned the side enough points for mid-table safety but Tottenham and Arsenal have thumped them this season by an aggregate of nine goals to nil. Huddersfield lost four matches before beating Brighton and Chelsea were in form before their defeat at West Ham. You can ignore one match form and back CHELSEA to win tonight at 2/5 with Ladbrokes. Class will out even when it's very cold.

The rest of the Premier League season is about playing for second place. Manchester City are home and hosed and they are good enough to go through the Premier League season without losing a match. If the second best team in the country are Manchester United City have nothing to fear. They beat their local rivals on Saturday at Old Trafford with something to spare. CITY are 50/1 to win the quadruple and that's not the worst bet in the world.

There is an inspection today at Wolverhampton and Ayr is off so the only definite meeting in Britain is at Lingfield and there is nothing in Ireland. That means potentially there is only one race offering more than £10,000 to the winner and that is the Betway Dash Handicap (2.10pm). Bookmakers love sponsoring open races because they get money on most runners and can form a winning book. KASBAH has the joint highest Racing Post Ratings and can be backed each way at 25/1 with Betfair.

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

December has yet to really being in earnest for us but that is no problem things should really start kicking in this week. I am expecting plenty of winners from some good old-fashioned gambles.

We have had a couple of decent winners this month with 14/1 shot FAMOUS MILLY that turned over and odds on shot easily back from a break and also AWESOME ROSIE at 13/2 that was enough to pay back some earlier losses. So take it from me today could be a really good day to join us!

Today's Horses In Focus

AYR sadly is abandoned today so we just have 2 meetings to concentrate on the all-weather.

Lingfield 1-35 Handicap (Class 3) 10f - VAN HUYSEN at 25/1 represents plenty of value back over the horses optimum distance today. Connections are hoping for a really big run from the horse and think that they have. The speed rating generated last race over a mile would be good enough to come somewhere close in this company yet the horse was in need of the run back from a break and the distance was a little on the sharp side for the horse that day.

Lingfield 2-10 Handicap (Class 2) 5f - SIR MAXIMILLION 16/1 is a big price for this race the horse has largely acquitted himself well in Maydan. Running off top weight today will make life tough but the horse should have enough class to get some where near. When I priced this race yesterday I made the horse a 7/1 shot so to get 16/1 screams value to me.

Lingfield 3-15 Handicap (Class 5) 5f - TEMPLE ROAD 20/1 is the outsider of the field here but last race ran so much better then the final result. The horse has ticks in plenty of important boxes today and is now down to the horses last winning mark. He has a decent turn of foot when in form and may just be over priced for this race 10/1 would be generous so 20/1 screaaams bargain.

Wolverhampton 5-20 Handicap (Class 6) 8.5f - SPRING BEAUTY 25/1 is trying to land a touch today for connections. The horse does run from 1 lb out of the handicap yet I'm informed that they think the horse is really well in of a mark of 45 and has been working well at home with higher rated individuals. Not sure how long the price will hold up for so be quick but this horse has been set up to go close. All they need now is best foot forward.

That's it today from us we have a good few account bets today at some working men's prices.
