Dry January, Anyone? Nah, I prefer It Wet! - By Eddie Lloyd

I have a lot of friends doing dry January at the moment, and I find it very admirable that people can abstain from alcohol for the full 30 days. Personally, I awake on the 1st January with every intention of joining in, as is always the case with the dreaded hangover, but my resolve usually lasts less than 30 hours, let alone 30 days!

I did manage 12 days, however, and felt a lot better for it. That was, until, I went to visit a sick relative at the weekend and being there with my father, meant that the single malt came out and any refusal to take part in “just the one tot” was something that was immediately shot down.

“I know you’re on dry January, but this is a one-off and I insist you join me in a whiskey” insisted my father. So much for the parental responsibility!

So, half a bottle later and the conversation flowed. We talked about our relative who is not in a good way and took note, that despite their illness getting worse, they seemed very upbeat. Always worth thinking about when suffering from a hangover!

Anyway, apart from the ill relative, we got talking about betting. You guessed it, dry January was used as a comparison to the mentality of betting.

There are a lot of challenges out there that encourage people to take on the challenge of staying “dry” during January and not take a sip of alcohol. I’m planning on starting a new challenge for Betfan readers that doesn’t involve alcohol, but betting - Drumroll, please....

Find a Fruitful Tipster February or FFTF from now on!

From the 1st February (Thursday), I will be encouraging readers to utilise Betfan’s proofing pages to find a tipster that works for them. We’ve a ton of information that can be used on the website and once you’ve found one that suits you, we can look at setting up a special deal for you.

So, how do we go about this?

Let’s start by looking at the Top Performers -

<https://members.betfanplus.com/top/betfan>

Have a look through each tipster and look at their history of proofing. Would you be comfortable with the amount of bets that they deliver? Could you cope with long losing runs but then big priced winners, bringing us into profit? Do you prefer lots of winners but a smaller profit?

Once you've found a tipster that you like the look of, then take note and every day go through their proofing to see if you would have been happy with that day's performance. You've got two weeks to find a tipster that you'll be comfortable with. Trial a few if you like. At the beginning of February, we'll start giving special discounts to those that have kept track of a tipster and get them up and running at a discounted price. Happy days and probably a lot easier than doing dry January! Me, I prefer it wet!

There are two selections for the Turbo Winning System, today -

16:35 Kempton - Mercers

19:40 Kempton - Iley Boy

Back on Thursday with another look at the weekend's football and next week, I'll be showing you what I've done to prepare for the FFTF!

Dubai World Cup Carnival 2018 - Things To Look For - By High Roller Racing

The Carnival season is upon us once again and I find this annual occasion very interesting and very exciting. To me it's another Festival I look forward to with immense expectation of great racing.

What am I looking forward to about this years Carnival? Well I have so many things I could write about but I have narrowed my 'huge' list down to just five things for us all to look for this year.

I look forwards firstly to the vast amount of International stars, horses that is, who will be racing and giving us all their Superstar Quality throughout the Dubai Carnival. Apart from the UAE horses we have horses coming from USA, France, Norway, Ireland, UK and South Africa. I am not sure if the Japanese are planning to be there this season. Surprisingly the Scandinavian horses do well at the Carnival with Niels Peterson making the breakthrough in 2015 with Beat Baby.

Secondly I look forwards to seeing one of my favourite horses running the winning machine Vazirabad from Alain Du Roger-Dupre's yard in France. This grand old Warrior is a regular visitor to this meeting and all being well he will go for an unprecedented third win in the Dubai Gold Cup. I do hope he does it!

Thirdly we will see some of the fastest sprinters in the world. The going is normally 'lightening quick' and it's a fantastic site to see these majestic sprinters bolting down the sprinting course at the Carnival. What a treat!

Fourthly I look kindly at the Godolphin dominance of the meeting... why you ask? Well their dominance gives us a lot of opportunities to back winners. They promote and sponsor the Carnival and I think they deserve a good return of winners for doing so... in my eyes this is a MAJOR spectacle in the racing calendar. Perhaps Heavy Metal or Long River for Godolphin could give current favourite Thunder Snow something to think about.

Finally the World Cup on the final evening of the meeting is the $10 million showpiece with top rated thoroughbreds up for this massive prize. Last year Arrogate was the first horse to be rated over 140 when winning. Arrogate seems a mere shadow of himself nowadays and perhaps that leaves the door open for Collected or West Coast to step forwards. Whatever it's an event to savour. I hope you enjoy every aspect of this years Dubai Carnival.

High Roller is back in winning ways after a damp start to January. The last two tips have won at 15/8 and 5/4 so come and follow my team for a profitable time. Summary is a max of one tip per day... you pay just £10 if the tip wins and nothing if it doesn't. Follow the link below and join a service who won big style in the last few months of 2017.

Vardy Can Score Against His Old Club

Jamie Vardy scored 31 goals in 36 appearances for Fleetwood Town in the 2011-12 Conference Premier season. Both the player and club have been upwardly mobile in the last few years. Vardy won a Premier League title with Leicester and has played for England while Fleetwood have risen to the third level of English football and have ambitions to get higher. VARDY was injured so couldn't play in the original tie at Fleetwood but is 4/6 with William Hill score at any time during 90 minutes of the replay in Leicester tonight. The home side should progress but may not get the job done in 90 minutes and are massive favourites to qualify for the next round. The winners of the fixture are at PETERBOROUGH in the fourth round and that side are 1000/1 to win the FA Cup.

There are jumps meetings at Hereford and Ayr today and an All-Weather fixture at Kempton. There is only contest that offers over £15,000 to the winner, another that is worth over £10,000 but no other race today offers more than £6,000 to the winning connections. Prize money in British racing is derisory compared to other racing nations but it's the ones without an on-course betting option that can provide the lucrative races. Diversity in the type of racing and how you can place a bet are paid for by low levels of prize money and you can't please all the people all the time. The richest race of the day is at Kempton (6.40pm) and DANZAN is a decent colt with a big chance and the horse can be backed at 11/8 with Ladbrokes.

Ronnie O'Sullivan plays Marco Fu in the Masters snooker at the Alexandra Palace. The Rocket has won the tournament three times in the last four years and is the favourite this time. His opponent recorded the highest break in the event last year and produced six century breaks. Both players have positive mental associations with the venue and tournament. Playing at his best and fully focused O'Sullivan is the best player in the world and a five-time world champion. He seemed to be playing with freedom and a couldn't care less attitude which is a dangerous combination. O'SULLIVAN minus 1-5 frames in the best of 11 match is 4/9 with Betfair.

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

Today is not the best of cards but there is still profits that can be made. I have decided just to focus on HEREFORD today as the all-weather doesn't offer much and the other jump meeting is at AYR. Well our AYR performance from last year and the year before hasn't been great. I guess there are too many local trainers that we just don't know much about so I think this year we are really going to try and maximise our Strengths, but we are always reviewing our selections for unprofitable trends and it's looking like backing horses at Ayr over the long term only costs us money. So we would have to have Very Strong info to get involved at that track. We haven't had that up there since FONTWELL ROAD won the Ayr gold cup all those years back.

Things have been a bit hit and miss for the start of the year but there are definite signs of improvement as the month goes on and we have some really nice bets lined up in the coming weeks if they equate to value in the market so I am excited to see what happens. Right forward we go with this weeks...

TUESDAY'S HORSES IN FOCUS

Hereford 12:20 Novices/Maiden Hurdle (Class 5) 16f - I know that there has been a lot of work put in to SABLE ISLAND 2/1 but I do see the price as been a problem. Yes the horse was useful on the flat for Sir Michael Stout but his mark was only similar to ROMANOR trading around 12/1 I think there is little to choose between them in past flat form yet the prices are miles apart and I personally would rather risk the larger price with horses of these profiles.

Hereford 12:50 Maiden Hurdle (Class 5) 20f - PITON PETE at 3/1 represents a little value. The horse really needs a strong pace to run at and didn't get that at Plumpton latest. On that speed favouring track the horse was caught for toe and just couldn't keep up. Today the make up of the race should make it quickly run and then Piton can show what he is all about.

Hereford 2:00 Handicap Chase (Class 4) 25f - The horse that beat HANDSOME SAM 12/1 came out next race and destroyed another field of experienced rivals at Ludlow franking the form in no uncertain terms. Handsome Sam is expected to make into a 120 horse this year. They feel he is improving at home as he learns about the game and a solid run is expected today.

Hereford 3:05 Handicap Hurdle (Class 3) 20f - I can't help thinking that COUGAR KID 25/1 is too big for this race. Yes it's a step up in class for the horse. That said the horse rates clear on the clock for us from a couple of run that have produced solid speed ratings. Course and distance winner the horse may be good enough to get a place at least and as for the horses mark I think it's quite lenient currently so a small each way play could be the way to go.

Hereford 3:40 Handicap Chase (Class 4) 19f - There are a couple at really big prices here the first is GORES ISLAND 20/1 a bit of an in out performer but on his day this 12yo still has some ratings of note and from a stable in decent nick at the moment he should be considered despite younger rivals. The other is MODELIGO 33/1 not over raced for a 9 yo and has plenty of wins to his name albeit not over this far. The stable are slowly coming to hand and might well start knocking in a few winners at decent prices.
