The Flat Season Approaches... Look Out For This Super Trainer - By High Roller Racing

As stables prepare for new Flat Turf season there is one trainer across the Channel who is getting his horses ready in a much calmer climate. The man in Jean Claude Rouget... Superman French Trainer.

This man is one of the Aga Khan's trainers who is another French Genius alongside the household names of Andre Fabre and Alain Du Roy Dupres.

Jean Claude Rouget was born in 1953 and at the age of 25 took out a trainers licence based in Pau. In his early years Jean Claude was a dual purpose trainer which means he trained flat horses and national hunt horses. Like in all fairy stories he trained a winner with his first runner and gradually became a dominant force in the southwest of France.

From 1993 Jean Claude decided to concentrate solely on Flat horses in an effort to rise up the rankings aiming to be the best around. This was not as easy as it sounds though because the top trainers had the facilities and were based in and around Chantilly.

Very quickly Jean Claude set a record which still stands of 242 winners in a season and won Group1 races courtesy of a horse called Millkom who won six times in the southwest before taking Group1 honours in the Prix Jean Prat and Grand Prix de Paris. Millkom lost in the Arc but bounced back to win the Group1 Man O'War Stakes. Jean Claude was moving up the ladder... very quickly.

As the years progressed Jean Claude was leading winner trainer in France and by the turn of the century the sky was his limit as Group race winners were coming along on a very regular basis. Then in 2007 Literato won the Champion Stakes at Newmarket as Jean Claude made his mark in Great Britain. That same year saw the Aga Khan starting relations with this progressive trainer to add him to their list of trainers was indeed recognition.

By 2010 Jean Claude had trained 5,000 winners... what a great achievement? Success sometimes interrupted by disaster such as when Valyra was tragically killed in an accident. She was a superb filly destined for the very top. Jean Claude continues to train winners and bounced back with Ervedya in 2015 to win three Group1 races including the Coronation Stakes.

It's obvious to us all by now this man, Jean Claude Rouget, is a genius who is heading towards 6,000 winners and any horses he runs must be feared. Jean Claude is heading towards 'Legend' status amongst the great trainers. Any man who gives Aidan O'Brien a challenge Must indeed be pretty good and that has happened over recent seasons.

Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

Are England A World Cup Bet At 16/1?

There are no major football matches in Britain tonight because the Premier League and Champions League are taking a break to accommodate international football friendlies. One of the most intriguing fixtures is the match at the Luzhniki Stadium in Moscow between Russia and Brazil. World Cup qualification is done and dusted and now teams are preparing for the tournament in Russia in the summer.

Gareth Southgate must continue to do his job on the assumption that England compete but that issue may be taken out of his hands. In Harry Kane ENGLAND only have one world class player so look too short at 16/1 with William Hill to win the World Cup. Whatever the heart says the head says that won't happen but we might never know if non-football events make participation impossible.

England are not good enough to win the World Cup but at least they qualified. There are some significant absentees, notably Italy who have been the World champions four times and have played in the last 15 tournaments. Italy were only a goal away from playing in Russia but Holland were never in contention. The team that made the semi-finals in Brazil four years ago were a mile away from qualifying this time.

England play the Netherlands away from home in a friendly on Friday night. The manager has introduced some fresh faces but there could be a recognisable player in goal. Joe Hart's loss of confidence is part of the collateral damage at West Ham but he is in the squad for this week's match and Evens with bet365 to make the World Cup squad. HART still looks like being on the plane for Russia.

This time last week we were anticipating the Cheltenham Festival and the meeting did not let us down. We now have a lull before the Grand National meeting at Aintree and it's back to moderate Tuesday afternoon fare. There's actually some decent prize money on the All-Weather at Newcastle tonight. The richest race of the fixture is the six furlong handicap at 6.40. On ratings MYBOYHENRY looks a good bet at 9/1 with Betfair to win this contest.

The Quickest Way To Read The Form - By Eddie Lloyd

Form reading is a skill. It's been used to find winners and losers since horse racing first began. It can be very satisfying to read a race, watch it and get it spot on. That's why we do it! For the thrill of our judgement, being right. Oh, and to win money!

The problem with form reading is, to do it properly, it takes a long time and if you're looking at a 14 runner handicap, it could take hours. However, there is a quick way to read the form and most people overlook it.

When looking for a winner and using the form, we need to consider three things. The going, distance and the course. If the horse has shown the ability in these three areas, then he should be more than capable of repeating it. I appreciate that this is not always the case but we've got a head start if we can find these horses.

Head over to the Racing Post and select a race. Handicaps are best, as generally, we have enough form for us to find the right type of horse. I'm going to take a look at the 16:10 Wetherby, today -

<https://www.racingpost.com/racecards/87/wetherby/2018-03-20/695047>

Once on that page, we need to scroll down to the bottom and look for the Stats column. This is completely free to use and can give us the quickest way of understanding the form.

We want to be looking at the By Horse section. You can see that it shows you how many times a horse has won over the going, distance and course. The higher the percentage, the better. The standout horse in this race is Newberry New. He's won on this going 3 times and has won over the course. Apart from Top Cat Henry, no other horse has won over this distance, so it's all to play for.

So, within 10 seconds, we've found our qualifying horse. I would now, quickly check the form of Newberry New and check to see if he's capable of the distance. We can do this by clicking on the horse's name on the card and looking at his previous races. He's won over 2 miles 4 furlongs and by considerable distances which would suggest he can stay the extra 1 and a half furlongs in today's race.

The last thing to do is to check the market. He's up there vying for favouritism so becomes a bet.

The whole process took me about 60 seconds to complete and is by far the quickest way to narrow down the field and read the form.

There are many more complex ways to read the form and I will cover these in other articles, but for now, this method will have you churning out the winners in less than 5 minutes a day.

I've gone through the cards today and the following are all qualifying bets, using this system.

15:40 Wetherby - Eminent Poet

16:10 Wetherby - Newberry New

5:35 Newcastle - Dubawi Fifty

18:40 Newcastle - Vj Day

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

Well Cheltenham threw up a few surprises. I have never seen the ground so testing at the meeting and it certainly told. Not only did the weather play a part here it is through out racing right now. It's hard to say how it effects horses but this recent cold snap when we should be heading into spring will have some effect. Also plenty of snow has stopped some horses from training. On the plus side we landed 16/1 advised winner this week with EMIGRATED 10/1 sp that paid back a few losses and has left us a good platform to build on this week.

On paper we have some really good bets and I'm certainly positive that we can make a decent return this month.

TUESDAY'S HORSES IN FOCUS

Newcastle 5-35 Handicap (Class 2) 16f - DUBAWI FIFTY is clear favourite and strong in the market but I'm going to give a chance on 8/1 shot CONTINUUM. Quite a fragile horse but one with plenty of ability. He posted a decent rating last run and has gone bigger in the past. I certainly prefer the odds on offer here even with the risk of a bad run. Certainly, capable of doing better.

Newcastle 8-45 Handicap (Class 4) 6f - HAROME looks to be getting stronger as he ages, now a 4 year old he has been a stiff mark for a while but the horse has lots of potential they thought he would progress to listed level by the time he was 5 so keep this one in your diary they think he is a nice horse who needed time and experience may need the run today but is as fit as they can get him at home is the advice but 16/1 I think has some value with that considered. ONE TO LOOK OUT FOR!

I have an account bet at Wetherby today as well and I was going to share here but non runners in the race have seen the price fall and now it doesn't represent much in the way of value sadly so I won't mention it here we could have a winner from these 2 bets above.
