Three Trainers Who Are Looking Hot - By High Roller Racing

At this time of year we are blessed with some big racing festivals in Cheltenham, Aintree and Punchestown. Newmarket follows on etc etc etc but in between these festivals we get our day to day racing and the trainers I am writing about this week are capable of winners throughout the next few weeks.

Peter Bowen has won some big prizes in April in years gone by and he could be a man to look out for in the next few weeks. Peter landed the Bet365 Gold Cup last season with Henllan Harri and Ron's Dream winning a good race over the weekend. The Scottish National was won at this time of year by Al Co for Peters yard in 2014. Henri Parry Morgan and Minella Daddy are both entered in the Grand National on Saturday but Peter thinks they are too far down the list to have a realistic chance of running. Peter has several entries in the Topham Chase on Friday of the Aintree meeting including Henri Parry Morgan... before Aintree look for Peters novice hurdler Lord Napier who has won his last two races but must be backed to land the hat trick from quite a few entries in the coming days. Cruising Bye has rejoined Peter who won twice with him and could follow previous wins with a race at Hexham should he run. Anyway keep your eyes open for Peter Bowen's entries and his runners.

Our next trainer is Daniel Loughnane who has been in his new purpose built yard near Kidderminster, Worcestershire for about a year now. Daniel has made a good start to 2018 with ten winners on the all weather including one in France since the start of January. The star horse has been Dark Alliance who has won four races since January. Daniel has some decent chances coming up with a number of entries in the coming days. Lord Murphy has had some near misses but could come good looking at his entries and Joys Delight has several entries and could go in. Dream Magic is another to watch carefully from Daniels yard.

Kachy has been one of the top sprinters on the all weather for Tom Dascombe and the horse finished second on Championship Day at Lingfield All Weather Day. Tom has his string in fine fettle with signs of plenty winners to come. Calder Prince was impressive handicap winner at Wolverhampton last Thursday and could go in again under a penalty. Doctor Sardonicus could be a very interesting runner for Tom on his first run for the yard after joining from David Simcock with whom he won twice at Chelmsford. What's also interesting is regular rider Martin Harley keeps the ride on Doctor Sardonicus....obviously the owner gets his way... and why not as he pays the bills. Admiral Spice could be one to look for from this yard. Watch Toms entries and runners.

I hope you have found this article informative and interesting. We get to hear of horses from these yards so why not join us for FREE and pay only £10 for every winner we give you. ## This Weeks Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

Grand National And Champions League This Week

It's a massive week for sports betting with turnover expected to reach record levels for the midweek Champions League quarter-finals and the Grand National on Saturday. There are regular tournaments for tennis and golf and it could turn out to be a bookies benefit or a bonanza for punters. Bookmakers go 10/1 the field for the National and the most famous race in the world looks the most open for a number of years.

The Grand National is the highlight and culmination of the Grand National meeting at Aintree from Thursday to Saturday. This year there is a four week gap between the Cheltenham Festival and Aintree so its feasible for horses to run at both meetings. Aintree is less intense than Cheltenham but the racing is just as good and there is the cherry on top of the National on Saturday for which BLAKLION is 12/1 with Betfair.

There are four Grade 1 races at Aintree on Thursday and even that does not happen at Cheltenham. The quality of the racing and facilities has improved massively over the last 20 years. Ladies Day has its special attractions and is Liverpool's day out but overall the three day meeting offers high class sport. Buveur D'Air, Might Bite and Altior could be running this week and they are superstars of the jumping game.

The four Champions League quarter-finals are decided with two fixtures on both Tuesday and Wednesday. Manchester City are 3-0 down to Liverpool after the first leg at Anfield and will need something special to progress. Bayern Munich, Real Madrid and Barcelona are favourites to join one of the English clubs in the semi-finals. BAYERN MUNICH are 3/1 with William Hill to win the Champions League.

The racing week begins today with jumps meetings at Ludlow, Wincanton and Kempton and they race on the All-Weather at Wolverhampton. The prize money at the small country Ludlow track is decent for a Monday and the Handicap Chase at 3.55 is worth over £13,000 to the winner. SPACE ODITY carries top weight but enters calculations on past form and can be backed at 7/2 with Ladbrokes.
