Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

Real Madrid Can Progress To The Champions League Final

Even though Real Madrid are playing at home and have a 2-1 lead from the first leg the semi-final tie against Bayern Munich in the Champions league is not over. If the German champions score first it basically becomes the next goal the winner. Bayern were the best team for long periods in the first match and won't be intimidated about having to score more than one goal in the Bernebeu. A precedent was set last year when Bayern Munich went to the Spanish capital and beat Real 2-1 in their own backyard. It's an all or nothing situation and the same result would send the semi-final into extra time and that correct score is 10/1 with Ladbrokes.

However, conversely are we missing an opportunity to back Real Madrid at odds against at home? In La Liga they are only bigger than Evens when Barcelona visit and usually they are long odds-on to secure three points. The waters are muddied by the fact that Real Madrid have conceded at least one goal in 22 of their last 26 matches. Bayern scored first in their home tie despite massive disruption to the team and plan due to key injuries. Madrid often leave things late to decide Champions League knockout ties when they are at home in the second leg. The potential bets are both teams to score and Real Madrid to qualify but on reflection the way to go is backing the DRAW at 3/1 with William Hill.

There are five Flat meetings in Britain today as the jumps fraternity take a break. Their season ended at Sandown last Saturday and actually the new one began yesterday. All roads lead to the Cheltenham Festival next March but for now the focus is on racing on the level and the first two Classics are at Newmarket this weekend. It's unlikely there are any horses with Classic potential in action today but some champions have made humble beginnings so you never know. The principle meeting is at Nottingham where there is a decent handicap over just over a mile at 3.35. PRYING PANDORA is well handicapped on past form and is the horse to back at 3/1 with bet365.

Haggas, Appleby And Ivory Trainers To Follow - By High Roller Racing

During the next couple of weeks or so it may be wise to consider the horses trained by William Haggas, Dean Ivory and Charlie Appleby who look very much one's to follow.

William Haggas has made a fabulous start to the flat season much better than usual with winners coming all over the place. This very powerful yard has some entries coming in next few days which we need to consider. Tarte Tropezienne being one to look for and has entry at Salisbury and she will stay further this season. Kodinar look to be a little ring rusty and will be all the better for the Ripon run. Croque Monsieur looks an interesting entry for his debut at Nottingham... look well bred looking at his pedigree. Final Treat could show his opening handicap mark of 77 is rather lenient and he could wisely be considered if running at Nottingham. This yard is powerful and in good form so ignore them at your peril.

Charlie Appleby took the Craven Meeting by storm with six winners at the meeting... some form by anyone's standards. Past history shows Appleby gets stronger as we go into May so keep a very watchful eye on Charlie. The trainer won with his first two year old runner at the Craven meeting and has Shellbrook another 2yo entered up on Monday and Tuesday... worth considering. Two others who we should be watching for from this yard are Sound and Silence plus Dathanna. These two horses should pay their way. Watch out for Charlie Appleby entries and actual runners. Should be followed.

Dean Ivory normally has a quiet spell at the end of the all weather season into the turf season but that's not the pattern this year. Dean has some interesting entries coming up over next few day and if they are declared to run then we need to put them amongst our considerations. Spring Romance has been in very good form on all weather but has improved after a gelding operation. His turf form last season was nothing special but after this operation and his improved form then I am happy to give the horse another chance. Eirene finished third in the Nell Gwyn Stakes and could have a decent season in front of her. Olive Mabel isn't expected to stay a maiden for long so look out for her. Overall Dean Ivory does well for the limited animals he gets into his yard... a very competent trainer who can bang in the winners.

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

Here we are a new month and lots of good bets to come some at what could be huge prices with horses kept under the radar. Really exciting time I think this is the month that we will see us make new all-time highs JOIN US NOW AND MAKE THE RIGHT INVESTMENTS.

Nice News letter last week highlighting a couple of decent winners in BALTIC PRINCE and POURLEVICTOIRE both running for the CARROL stable. They are in great form and tomorrow they have lots of runners and they could be looking at a bumper day I will be covering some each way multiples in the hope of a big win so you are welcome to join in.

These are the horses in questions...

- Tomorrow - 5:55 Jeremy's Jet (Overnight) at Wolverhampton (AW) #thisistheblackcountry Apprentice Handicap
- Tomorrow - 6:10 Kath's Boy (Overnight) at Brighton Colour Obstacle Rush Brighton 12 May Handicap
- Tomorrow - 6:40 Nouvelle Ere (Overnight) at Brighton South Coast Mighty Hike 7 July Handicap
- Tomorrow - 7:20 De Vegas Kid (Overnight) at Bath Peter Walwyn Memorial Handicap
- Tomorrow - 8:10 Beau Mistral (Overnight) at Brighton Injured Jockeys Fund Handicap
- Tomorrow - 8:20 Frank Cool (Overnight) at Bath Drive Vauxhall Handicap

Tuesdays Horses In Focus

Brighton 4-25 Handicap (Class 6) 8f - ST JAMES PARK looks a huge price at 22/1 and could be a nice bit of value. This race sees the horse at peak fitness with a mark that has dropped significantly. A much-improved performance last time we pencilled the horse in at 8/1. The course should suit very well so we are hopeful of a big run today.

Brighton 5-25 Handicap (Class 6) 10f - I have heard that a big run is expected from JUNOESQUE today 20/1 looks a fair price for the risk we priced at 14/1 so a bit of value but it will be a tough race to win. The Club are hopeful and think that they have found the key to the horse, so it will be interesting to watch.
