Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

Salah Is A Decent Price To Score The First Goal

There is a lull in proceedings in the world of football betting with no major fixtures in Europe today. The countdown continues for the Champions League final between Real Madrid and Liverpool in Kiev on Saturday. If you are going to the match and don't have a place one of the locals has set up a Facebook page offering an informal service that is akin to Airbnb. The alternative is paying massively over the odds for a hotel room. Meanwhile in a small town in northern Egypt the residents are drooling over one of their own making an impact in the biggest domestic match in the world. MOHAMED SALAH is 9/2 with William Hill to score the first goal.

If you are stuck for something to do this afternoon you could watch and bet on the Indian Premier League playoff match between the home team in Hyderabad and Chennai. Its wham bam cricket in India and each team has 20 overs to amass a total of about 200 runs. Scoring at a run a ball just doesn't hack it in this form of cricket and you have to be scoring at 10 runs an over to be competitive. The two teams had an identical win/loss record during the regular season but Hyderabad topped the table thanks to a marginally better run rate. CHENNAI have more playoff experience so look a good bet at 4/5 with bet365 to win this match.

The racing in Britain and Ireland is a little bit like the calm before the storm. In the next four weeks there is the Derby and Oaks and Royal Ascot which is the Flat's equivalent of the Cheltenham Festival. There is plenty of action today but it's more about quantity than quality. The principle meeting is on the Flat at Nottingham but the seven races only offer £60,000 in total prize money. The fillies' handicap at 3.25 has the biggest prize for the winner but that is less than 10 grand. VERANDAH is more about potential than form on the track but it could all come right today and a win for the John Gosden trained horse is 11/4 with Coral.

Trainers Up For Winners - By High Roller Racing

As you may all know I often flag up trainers that are looking like turning out winners in the next week or so. I find that the trainers who hit form usually do so with a vengeance and several winners follow on from that yard. Just one thing which is nothing to do with the trainers I am highlighting but watch every horse of Paul Midgeley over sprints when he puts up jockey Dougie Costello... another one yesterday in the last at Newmarket at 4/1.

Anyway one lady running into form is Julie Camacho who has a tendency to win with the older horses. Cast offs you cry? Possibly when other trainers cannot be bothered(I know that from my experience as an owner) a lady like Julie and her staff revive them and getting their interest back and persuading the horse to give its best again. Julie's dad Maurice was the same sort of guy and knew the time of day with the older horses. You see every horse gets its chance eventually from handicapper and the trainer needs to get the horse at a peak to seize the opportunity. There are a couple of runners for the yard. Majestic Stone and Dalton should both be of interest this week after encouraging runs recently... don't be scared if you don't think their last run was poor... that's how this yard does it. I would not be surprised if Kirkham put up a better display in the coming days. Treat Julie's runners and entries with respect.

Nicky Henderson is still powering along with his team and overall I think the ones he has in summer training are firing on all cylinders. The last form figures recently are 11011222051 that is quite some going with five winners and three seconds from eleven runners as I write. Nicky runs L'Ami Serge at Auteil on Sunday but later in the week I am very interested in French Crusader at Southwell the horse won at Towcester without coming off the bridle. Should be one to follow. Cool Macavity is set for a Summer campaign and Nicky has this 10 year old entered up in coming days. Henderson's stable should be observed very carefully whilst in such splendid form.

Michael Bell still has his string running well and running above his normal wins to runners ratio at this time of year. Main Desire was a very notable winner for Michael at York at the Dante Meeting last week. Michael has made a good start with his 2 year olds as well and Nuremberg will need looking at in the market if making his debut this coming week. This trainer can 'get one ready' as we say. Flying Sparkle and Arabian Jazz warrant respect in their entries from this yard... both could win in the coming days.

Overall ignore Michael Bell and his entries/runners and you could be very disappointed.

High Roller is in decent form and winners this week include four winners from six bets as I write.

SHUMOOKIE WON 5/4, HARRY ANGEL WON 4/5, MONSIEUR GIBRALTAR WON 4/6 and JUST A FEELING WON 11/8.

Our other two selections were Citadel at Sedgefield who was in contention when falling two fences out. Nordic Passage was second.

Tuesdays Horses In Focus

Ayr 2-35 Handicap (Class 6) 8f - PLAY WITH ME has a decent chance today according to connections. At 9/1 that looks a decent price to me. The horse likes the track and I can see a huge run coming today. Connections are betting and the horse comes out the top of our ratings.

Chepstow 2-10 Stakes (Class 5) 6f - Welcoming 5/2 is looking a really good bet even at 5/2 the horse is looking big and strong and should blast away this competition today. He's a really strong bet according to connections and they have gone in big today for his first run.

That is it for us today one of the big things we are concentrating on with our service is to provide fewer bets but to have a better quality of bet.
