Today's Sports Betting Preview - By Rick Elliott

England Play Switzerland In Real Friendly

England were 22 minutes away from playing in the World Cup final but have now lost three matches in succession for the first time since 1988. On the one hand England only beat Tunisia, Panama and Sweden in 90 minutes in Russia but progressed further than Germany, Brazil, Spain and Argentina. The cards definitely fell kindly but you can only beat who you have to play and England did score 12 goals in seven matches during the World Cup. Switzerland are their opponents this evening at Leicester's ground in what is a genuine friendly rather than the pseudo friendlies that are fixtures in the UEFA Nations League. ENGLAND are 7/10 with Ladbrokes to beat Switzerland tonight.

The bane of international football in the past has been meaningless matches with nothing at stake. Inventing a tournament concept will not fool the fans and everybody knows winning Euro 2020 is what matters and the Nations League is a manufactured environment. At least tonight the match is called a friendly and is not being disguised as something it is not. Team selection and motivation are key and you would fancy the England second string to beat Switzerland. However, England have won just three of their last nine friendlies and Switzerland have lost twice in 22 matches. The visitors scored six against Iceland in their last match and England are strong up front so the bet of the match is BOTH TEAMS TO SCORE at Evens with bet365.

Backing football teams at odds-on is not everybody's cup of tea and in international friendlies teams often don't play to their best. Players may lack the desire and hunger while opponents may have something to prove. However, in any potential scenario Poland must beat Ireland at home tonight in a non-competitive match. Ireland have just seven Premier League players available for selection. POLAND have a new coach and must be backed even at 11/20 with William Hill.

It's the second day of the Listowel harvest festival and the fixture is the most lucrative of the day. The richest race on the card is the handicap hurdle over two miles at 3.40 and there is a maximum field of 18 runners. The place terms are one quarter the odds for the first four and KUIPER BELT is the each-way bet. The horse has won two minor races in England and now steps up to handicap company with potentially something in hand so is the selection at 10/1 with Coral.

O'Brien Back In Form After A Break - By High Roller Racing

Aidan O'Brien was quite open, even if just a little late for some of us, about the virus attack his bloodstock and upsetting both his winning statistics and punters in general.

Aidan has been the Champion Prizw Money trainer since 1999 and will be there again this season... what hope do other trainers have? I think they hope he gives up! That's too easy to hope for as Joseph, his son, is learning very quickly. I would think Joseph will one day take over from his father.

Although the yards were open about the virus they now seem to be coming out of what would have been a very disappointing 'lull' in their winning ways. Just recently Aidan had Kenya win the Irish Cesarawitch at 20/1 and Innisfree at 12/1. Both of these horses were returning from around two months off the track so it may be worth looking at the yards horses returning from such a lay off. Horses fitting this trend are Spanish Point, Mount Tabora and Snowflakes all entered at Listowel. Look for their participation. I think we can be more positive about the yards recovery process.

Jamie Snowden has had his string in particularly good form of late and with wins for Carntop and Lord Topper plus very useful places for Fact Of The Matter and Fileman. Lord Topper was given a very tender ride by a Page Fuller to win twice at Newton Abbot recently and the three timer looks possible. Both Carntop and Lord Topper has entries this week so don't ignore them. The yards horse Next Level paid the price for jumping errors at Stratford and could be given a spell back over hurdles. He could need re-schooling. Watch for this small yards entries and runners.

Karl Burke has a yard with some very talented performers housed there. In the last two weeks horses like Havana Mariposa, Guvnors Choice and Mijack has shown personal bests in decent races with Guvnors the only one to do it in defeat but he could take some beating if taking up his entry at Wolverhampton this week. Karl and his staff have more horses in their care than ever before and Mr Dependable, Havana Mariposa and French Sonnet all have entries this coming week and they look like winnable entries. Watch for Karl's runners.

High Roller is in decent form this month with a 50 percent strike rate. Three wins and three seconds but feel unlucky as all three seconds were beaten in photo finishes. It's free to join us and we only ask you to pay £10 for every winner. Follow the link below to trial us. Best of luck this week.

Tuesday's Horses In Focus - By Unity Racing Investments

Really nice to report a 38% return on investment so far in September. With over 30% strike rate. Largely helped by winning 3 from 3 yesterday. The biggest price being 11/2.

We nearly got a great start after last weeks newsletter bet (Also sent to members) SUNDAY STAR advised at 40/1 ran a much better race and finished a head second lucky we got the each way money back but we just missed a huge win. Great info on that one!

Today for members we have several bets at Catterick that look very strong on paper so I'm looking forward to seeing how they go.

For free Members we are looking at one race Leicester 2-10 Stakes (Class 4) 7f. The favourite sets a fairly high standard here of a mark of 90 dropped in class here today.

IMPULSION trades around 9/4 and that makes a reasonable saver to a horse that we have heard has improved pounds at home. JUST BE FRIENDLY wasn't fit or clued up for her first race but should be a whole different proposition this time round according to connections. At 5/1 there is a significant gamble already going down on This horse. Maybe a small rev forecast is the order of the day.

Join today to get involved with our Catterick bets and to join us for what should be a really great end to the year.
