Toffees Can Chew Up The Clarets And Drink In Three Points

Everton looked out of the running for seventh place and qualification for the Europa League in March but a run of stunning results at home have brought them back in the mix. It's debatable whether the Europa League is a gift or a chore and it was certainly a negative for Burnley at the start of this season. They are at Goodison Park this evening for Everton's last home match and three points for the hosts would put pressure on the other sides in contention to be the best of the rest after the big six. Burnley have little to play for and Everton have only conceded in two of nine fixtures. EVERTON TO WIN TO NIL is the best bet at 17/10 with Betfair.

There are intriguing fixtures in other sports including the One Day International between Ireland and England in Dublin, which starts at 10.45am. England are the number one ranked team in ODI cricket and favourites to win the World Cup in England this summer. The batting line-up is not the first choice one today so taking short prices against Ireland in a friendly is not as attractive as backing ENGLAND at 9/4 with Coral to win the World Cup.

Castleford play at home against Warrington in the Super League in a fixture that is not difficult to call. Statistically on points scored and conceded and home advantage the handicap should be seven against the visitors. The bookmaker's line this morning is a six point's start for Castleford so there is no bet in this market. It could be more of a dour struggle than a point's fest but bookies are not betting on total points this morning for a match that WARRINGTON can win at 1/2 with Coral.

Life after Ruby Walsh continues at Punchestown today with the fourth day of their festival and the highlight is the track's Champion Hurdle over two miles at 5.30. Buveur D'Air fell in the Cheltenham version and Apple's Jade underperformed. Melon was giving Buveur D'Air a scare at Aintree before falling in a race won by Supasundae on heavy ground. SUMMERVILLE BOY was a top novice last season and can upset the apple cart by winning today at 40/1 with Betfair.
